H WAKANA, JULY 22ND, 1296.

Some of the most extraordinary remarks we have read on the question of the fall of prices appear in a recent issue of the Japan Gazette. "We must remember," save our contemporary, "that it is not scarcity of gold or silver that is making things cheap. Money in any form is not scarce. It is abundant, and can be had at low rates by any one who thinks he can employ it profitably. Gold is not scarce, and cannot in the nature of things pany, both on preference and ordinary shares, | toward the Mission Chapel and is a constant be monopolized by any one country. Whatever is the currency of the civilized world wherever it may be, it lies at the order of any nation that is in unusual need of it. No matter in what treasury or bank gold may let May she was spoken in the North Atlantic be, any country that wants it can have it by lowering the prices of the commodities it has for sale. In fact, gold goes around the world, like the 'ocean tramps,' in pernetual search for a good market. It never rests or stagnates anywhere. Any community can have it by offering to sell cheaper than its neighbours." That gold was scarce was fact we had imagined even the most hot headed of mono-metallists would have conceded. Columns of statistics have been published on this subject, but whether they are advanced in support of the arguments of the bi-metallists or the mono-metallists they all clearly demonstrate that gold is scarce. Hence its appreciation as compared with commodities and the consequent low rates prevailing for the Opium Ordinance, and had only about four the letter. If gold were 'plentiful, if the Australian and Californian discoveries were from natural causes was returned. repeated, there can be no question that, as happened before, the metal would become cheap and the prices of other things as measured in gold would rise. But, says our contemporary, money is abundant and can be had at low rates by any one who thinks he can employ it profitably. Here again, the low rates are consequent on the difficulty of employing money profitably. Land in England bought ten years ago now sells for it cost, and as no one can be sure the downward movement has stopped, indeed as there is good reason to believe prices have not yet quite touched their bottom, investors are shy, and capitalists, who can find no more profitable use for their ments are in much the same position as land the outturn is constantly decreasing in value, one step removed from boarding, and is a trade. If prices were rising instead of failing there would be a demand for money, because the borrower would feel that there was a prospect of his being able to employ it profitably and leave a margin for himself after

If gold lines of the Hongkong Tung Wah Hospital, and becomes cheap the prices of other commodities as measured in gold will go up;

if it becomes dearer prices will fall still lower. In time no doubt the world could accommodate itself to a restricted currency and commercial prosperity would be restored, but fluctuations such as that we are now pression and loss. The object of every intelligent individual ought to be to secure stability in the standard of value so that such fluctuations should be rendered as infrequent and slight as possible. This would be secured by the adoption of bimetallism, because silver and gold together are more stable as regards outturn and consequent value than either of them singly. Indeed, silver prices have remained pretty steady. while gold prices have been passing through 122 the severe crisis which has of late attracted such widespread and anxious attention and which is still far from being over.

During the liet, unhealthy months of June, July, and August, when so many natives suffered from bowel complaints, the hospital books record that advice was given on 7,300 occasions. The average monthly entries since the opening have been about 1,100. Vaccination was commenced at the hospital in the middle of December, and will continue to the end of April. Up to the end of March 1,033 were vaccinated. With the exception of the first few days, arm-to-arm vaccination has been performed, the charge being 40 cash. > The July number of the Chinese Recorder includes amongst its contents the following papers ! of general interest :- "Religious sects in North China," by the Rev. Dr. Edkins; "A visit to the Dogheaded Barbarians," by the Rev. F. Oblinger: and "The introduction of Mahomedanism into China," by the Rev. Geo. Clarke. The other leading papers are of almost exclusively Missionary interest. The Rev. Mark Williams in a page and a half of wrotched doggerel reviews his married life, thus :l'olday, just twenty years ago. We glided o'er the crispy snow, The great Church bell with clangour loud, Had summoned swift an eaver crowd, Silent they sat, and did us soan, As we the Church-sisle gauntlet ran. are further told that

And so on. A Missionary no doubt like other people must have his hours of relaxation, but if is recreation runs into poetising after this manner there is no reason why he should expose his weakness to the public. In the "Editorial Notes" we find the following: -" From a corresofficials is Capt. Lew Bush, 'the only one of eleven who saved his boat in the naval fight | 20th inst. In a note on the proclamation of the Governor of Chekiang on the kidnapping of children a very different complexion is given that document from the one given in the translations which appeared in our Shanghai contemporaries. According to the Recorder the proclamation refers to the kidnapping of children by foreigners and it states that "It is just for that reason that to every seaport the trading steamer comes." This seems too absurd an accusation even for a Chinese official to make, and we cannot but think the Recorder's translator has misapprehended the drift of the proclamation.

The Colonial Secretary—Sir. at the last mae'ing of Council, I gave notice that I should have to ask the Council for a vote, on account, of 520,000 for the construction of a mole for a fortification at the Malay Spit near Tanjong Pagar. I will not detain the Council long with an explanation of the reasons for this application. I have only to say that I regret that my honourable friend the Colonial Engineer is not here to give the Council those explanations which he could give much better than I can. From this source its origin would date time when Charles V., Emperor of Germany Henry VIII., of England, and Francis L. of France, were the three great monarchs of the world. It is traced to a little valley in Bohemia, called Joschimthal (Joschim-dael). In this dale or valley the Counts, of Schlick, about the year ounce pieces, which were a little larger than the | Chinese Imperial Government 1835 Dollar Loan American dollar, an ounce containing 480 grains and the dollar 4123 grains. There were many sources which contributed to a general knowledge of the word in America. The Pilgrims stopped in Holland on their way to this country, and must have been acquainled with the Dutch dollar (daalder). The Dutch who settled in New York brought dollars with them, as did the Swedes who settled in New Jersey and the How came it in the English language? This

In the former play the scene is laid in Vienna, where German thalers were in use, and it may have been introduced as a foreign word to correspond with the scene. In the latter play it is used by a nobleman, who is supposed to have lived in the time of Macbeth, about A.D. 1000. This would be plainly an anachronism if the word was used with any reference to the period represented, and we must therefore suppose that it was not uncommon at the time he wrote. If he did not find it in use he lett it so, for his use of the world has given it a standing in a language.

The final result of the elections shows that the forecast telegraphed by Reuter on the 12th inst. is not far out. The Unionist Liberals have secured one more sext, the Gladstonites four more, and the Conservatives four seats and the Parnellites one seat less than was estimated. The net result is, as compared with the last election, as follows:-

Unionist Liberals 78

Gladstonites 191

Parnellites 85

Conservatives 316 Conservatives 251 Liberals—Unionists 78

The majority of Liberals over Conservatives then was 117; the majority of Conservatives over Liberals now is 47. The Parnellites would still give the balance of power but for the split in the Liberal ranks.—Ed. D. SEVERE THUNDERSTORM AND HEAVY RAINFALL IN HONGKONG.

The representative of the German Syndicate accompanied the Minister from Peking, which has given rise to the surmise that his mission here is to see fair play in the matter of tenders for rails for the Kniping exsentative, left Shanghai on the 15th inst. for San | tension railway, which close to day. PEKING.

The new British Minister and family arrived here on the 13th of June. They came by the T'ung-chow canal to the East side gate and thence in chairs to the Legation. Several members of the Legations rode out to meet the party and welcome them to Peking. British interests may safely be entrusted to the care of the new Minis This large addition to the Legation is valuable augmentation of our Peking circle. several families have already migrated to the Manufacture. of Legation were received at the Tsungli Yamen for the first time on Friday, the 18th; the late Charge d'Affaires with the Chinese and Assistant Scoretaries accompanied His Excellency. It is cortain a good impression has been created. Great Britain by force of har predominating trade and the pluck, industry, push, integrity and generosity of her merchants must always make her self felt as a great power in the East. Mr Ho combe has returned from his flying visit to Shanghai. The new second secretary of the Russian Legation, the Prince Anatole Lobanon de Rostow with the Princess have also arrived We are soon to lose Dr. Lambuth, late of Socchow, who goes to Japan two months hence to initiate a mission there in connection with the Southern Methodist Mission with which he formerly, while in your neighbourhood, was connected. Although he is but a recent arrival the way of duty will prevent these mines from here, his loss will be felt, particularly by the took a great interest. Another friend and supporter of the same cause, Mr. Rhain, Secretary to the Dutch Legation, will probably leave for Europe on the arrival of his chief, who is shortly expacted. The new anti-Opium Society about to be instituted will also suffer from the departure of those two gentlemen. The departure of the latter gentleman will necessitate the election of a Secretary to the Peking Oriental and North Tract Societies respectively. The family of the British Minister and other members of Legation and well known residents have moved to the Hills. Lawn tennis for the season has now been started as usual in the British Legation. The Hongkong Bank buildings are all but finished. The high roadway in Legation Street between the Japanese and Spanish Legations is being lowered and levellad by the former Legation; some of the rubbish being sifted for building purposes and the remainder used for filling up low places on the same thoroughfare. The poor Chinaman who threw himself from the Legistion Street Bridge and dislocated his spine, was removed from the hospital when his case became hopeless, and taken by his friends to the bridge, where he was deposited. On the second day he committed suicide by ripping himself open by means of a broken bowl. We were likely to have had a vile nuisance all through the hot weather but for the timely inthe steamer from her course, for she struck a terference of the German Minister with the Foreign Office, through whose instrumentality the far off and deposited in a shady place to be interred, it may be menths hence, when the case has
